All Alike

Frank B. Kellogg tells the story of a forlorn man who was brought before a western magistrate charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct. When asked what he had to say for himself he gazed pensively at the judge and launched forth:

"Your honor, 'man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn.' I'm not so debased as Swift, as profligate as Byron, as dissipated as Poe, or so debauched as"—

"That will do," thundered the magistrate. "Thirty days; and, officer, take a list of those names and run 'em in. They're as bad a lot as he is."

Pride of Ancestry

"I've looked up your family tree," said the genealogist, "but I doubt if you will be pleased with it. Your great-grandfather was hanged for murder; your great-grandfather was imprisoned for robbery; your grandfather was tarred and feathered for beating his wife. That's not a very good record, is it?"

"I should say it is," replied the other emphatically. "It shows the family is getting better with each generation. I'm an improvement on the entire bunch—never been in jail yet. Let me have those records—I'm proud of 'em."

A Large Fraternity

"Yes," said the principal of the young ladies' seminary to the proud parent, "you ought to be very happy, my dear sir, to be the father of so large a family, all the members of which appear to be so devoted to one another."

"Large family! Devoted!" gasped the old gentleman in amazement. "What on earth do you mean, ma'am?"

"Why, yes, indeed," said the principal, beaming through her glasses. "No fewer than eleven of Edith's brothers have been here this term to take her out, and she tells me she expects the one with the blue eyes again tomorrow."

"Don't any of your friends come to see you on visiting days?" asked the kindly old lady. "No'm," responded No. 777,444; "they're all here with me."

"I follow the medical profession," remarked the newcomer proudly. "Surgeon?" was asked politely. "No, undertaker," he replied gravely.

Simple Method

"Don't you come across a good many things in the Bible that you don't understand, like the problem of Cain's wife, for instance?" queried the layman.

"Oh, yes, of course," acknowledged the clergyman.

"Well, what do you do about it?"

"My dear friend," replied the minister, laying down his fork, "I simply do just as I would while eating a nice fresh herring. When I come to the bone I quietly lay it on one side, and go on enjoying the meal, letting any idiot that insists on choking him self with the bone do so."

More Lovable

Two peevish old dames were sent over to inspect a Red Cross hospital in France. They came back and reported that a black cat was kept as a pet in the institute. The head of the hospital was written about it, and replied:

"The black cat is the Tommies' mascot, and they're fond of her—a lot fonder than they were of the two old cats you sent out here to insult us."

One Measure of a Good Time

Harry had attended the Christmas party of a little friend and enjoyed it very much, especially the candy and other goodies. A few days later the mother of his little host met him and asked:

"Did you have a good time, Harry, at Orrin's party?"

"I should say so!" responded Harry enthusiastically. "Why, mamma had to sit up with me three nights, I was so sick."

Something Anyway

"So you think a college education is a good thing for a boy?"

"Yes, I think it's a pretty good thing. Fits him for something in life. If he can't catch on with a baseball team, he can often land a job as a professor."

Unusual

"Miss Wombat is not a girl who wants to talk all the time. She is willing to listen."

"Yes; somebody once told her that she had beautiful ears."

"Perkins will never make a good golf player," remarked the first golf bug; "he neglects his game to attend to business."

The Ruling Passion

One evening a little boy entered a grocery store and handed the clerk a note which read: "I am a poor woman and have no money. My children and I are starving. Won't you give us something to eat?"

The kind-hearted clerk filled a large basket with food and gave it to the boy, who quickly departed.

In a few minutes he again entered the store.

"What's the trouble now?" said the clerk.

"Mamma send me back to get the trading stamps," the boy replied.

He's an Anti

"Women have queer ways."

"How now?"

"The styles call for mannish hats. So my wife bought a mannish hat for eighteen dollars."

"Well?"

"She could have bought a man's hat for four dollars."

How He Would Improve It

"What do you think of the scheme for the Christmas decorations?" she inquired. "It is holly over laurel leaves."

"Very good," he replied, "but personally I should prefer mistletoe over yew."

Content

Floor-walker (to man who seems undecided which way to go)—"Are you looking for something?"

Party addressed—"No, sir. I've lost my wife."

Wise Man

Wife (reading)—"Man in Georgia swaps his wife for a mule! Would you swap me for a mule, dear?"

Husband—"No, Jane. I wouldn't. I'm used to you but I ain't to mules."

"I suppose you want all the friends you can get."

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "only I can't help wishing a whole lot of them would be as assertive before election as they are afterward."

Rank Injustice

"Pa," inquired a seven-year-old seeker after the truth, "is it true that school-teachers get paid?"

"Certainly it is," said the father.

"Well, then," said the youth indignantly, "that ain't right. Why should the teachers get paid when us kids do all the work?"

Habitual

"Do you know you're growing handsome, hubble?"

"Yes; it's a way I have when it gets anywhere near your birthday."

Cheap

The Insolvent—Tell me, is it a crime to be poor?

The Lawyer—Not in this state, sir. The charge for my opinion on the subject is $5. Pay my clerk and go out quietly.

A Difference

"Is your husband an optimist?"

"Well," replied the tired-looking woman, "he's an optimist in hoping for the best, but a good deal of a pessimist in working for it."

In Court

"Do you know the nature of an oath, madam?"

"Well, I ought to, sir. We've just moved and my husband has been laying the carpets."

"Mamma, is papa goin' to die and go to heaven?" "Why, Bobby, what put such an absurd idea into your head?"

"Look here, Mose, I thought you were going to be baptized into the Baptist church." "Yaas, sah, I is. But I done been sprinkled into de 'Piscopal till de summer comes."

Geraldine—I don't believe that you fully trust me.

Gerald—What makes you think so? Geraldine—You never write me love letters like they read in court.

Crawford—I see the belligerents are calling out the older reservists. Do you think that married men should be compelled to fight?—Crabshaw—Why not? They are used to it!

"Society is so shallow," mused the parlor philosopher. "It's a good thing it is," retorted the mere man, "or half the people who are wading around in it would be drowned."

"There are things more valuable than money," ruminated the philosopher. "Sure," retorted the iconoclast, "that's the reason I need money to buy them."

Redd—He started out with a $6,000 automobile. Greene—And what car is he using now? Redd—A street car.

Here is another just-elected member of the Prince Albert "old-time jimmy-pipe" club. This is John O'Reilly, of East Providence, R. I., who has just passed the century mark. Mr. O'Reilly is one of those grand old men who has come to this ripe age with the joys of his friendly jimmy pipe fresh in his mind each morning. He has always been a liberal smoker.

Prince Albert is sold everywhere because the demand for it is universal. So wherever you happen to run short just drop in the nearest shop that sells tobacco and buy the tappy red bag for a jimmy pipe, 5c; tidy red tin, 10c; handsome pound and half-pound tin hum'ors; and that classy crystal-glass pound tin hum'ors with sponge-moistener top.
